

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword: From Stupid White Men to Smart White Man. ix

The Legacy of Black Power and the State of America’s “Bad Education” ix

The Plan of This Book. xii

Part One: Dude, What Happened Last Night? 1

Clueless in Berkeley: Dark Days for African Americans at UC . . . 1

The Blackout Protest 15

Black Students Are Not Wanted at Cal 20

Bob Laird, Former Director of Undergraduate Admissions
 at UC Berkeley 23

Robert McGuire’s Fable: “Pay First, Pump Later.” 26

Asian American and Black Students at UC Berkeley 28

The African American Studies Department’s Reaction to the Disappearance of Black American Students: The Schism between Black Immigrants and African Americans. 32

The Black Immigrant Has Replaced the Black American 41

How White Students Responded to the “Blackout” on Campus . . . 44

The White Faculty’s Reaction to the Disappearance of Black
 American Students: Chancellor’s Diversity Day 48

Open Letter to UC Berkeley Chancellor Robert Birgeneau 52

The Woman’s Response to the Disappearance of Black American Students: How UC Berkeley Used “Gender Reports” to Obscure the Real Problem on American Campuses 55

Part Two: Dude, If We Retrace Our Steps, We Can Find Your Black Studies Department! 61

A Short History of Black Studies in America: Moral Panic, Hip-Hop, and Black Studies 61

The A&T College Lunch Counter Sit-in 64

Merritt College and the Beginning of Black Studies 67

San Francisco State University and Black Studies in the Late 1960s 69

The First Black Man to Disappear at UC Berkeley: Eldridge Cleaver and 139X 72

The History of UC Berkeley’s African American Studies Department 74

From Third World College to Third World Elite, Overseers Come from Overseas 77

Black Studies: The Second Wave (Late 1980s–Mid-1990s) 77

Part Three: Dude, There’s Your Black Studies Department! 81

The Reappearance of Blacks in Music Videos, State Prisons, Fallujah, and Low-Paying Jobs: The New American Culture and the New Education, “Still Some of You Blacks Left?” 81

The Hip-Hop Generation: Youth in Crisis 87

The Hip-Hop Generation vs. the Civil Rights Generation 90

College Life in Black and White 92

White Students Are Not Taught How to Argue 95

White Suburban Teenagers’ Fascination with Black Culture 98

Bad-Mouthing Literacy: How Rap Music Helps White Youth Deal with Their Fear of Girls 99

Marshall McLuhan and Black Culture Change: Some Whites Turn to Black Culture for Their Identity. 101

A Night in San Francisco: White Consumer Culture in the Marketplace	107
White Consumers' Demands and Identity Struggle in Black Culture	112
Hip-Hop: The New Black Studies and the Future of Black Culture in the Academy	113
How We Can Restart Black Studies and Bring Race Back into Admissions	117
Proposition 209, Ten Years Later	118
African American Studies Goes Global, or How American Culture Absorbs Black Studies: Big Bank Takes Little Bank ...	120
Epilogue: Professor Cornel West, Hip-Hop, and the Academy	125
Larry Summers, the President of Harvard, vs. Cornel West, the Professor of Rap	125
Endnotes	131
Bibliography	136
About the Author	139